Gold prices gained setting the highest bullion-market benchmark in 4 months as financial markets whipped on rumors that China may stop buying more US government debt for its huge foreign currency reserves. While as per Bloomberg News says officials running China's $3.14 trillion of central-bank reserves have "recommended" reducing or pausing the purchase of US Treasury bonds, blaming tensions with President Donald Trump over China's huge trade surplus, plus better returns offered by other assets.

Indian jewellers and bullion traders are divided over a potential reduction of import duty on Gold, with a section urging New Delhi to cut the levy and the other opposing any change to the tariff structure to protect the interests of sovereign gold bond investors. The All India GJF has sought the duty to be reduced to 4% from 10% in the upcoming budget. The IBJA, by contrast, says that any reduction will require New Delhi to put in place a compensation mechanism for sovereign gold bond investors who had factored in the 10% duty while buying the instrument.

Gold on MCX settled up 0.58% at 29324 as the dollar tumbled to a six-week low versus the Japanese yen and slid against the euro, lifting assets priced in the US currency and offsetting a rise in global yields. The dollar fell as much as 1.2 percent against the yen after the Bank of Japan's move to trim its long-dated government bond purchases earlier this week, putting the US currency on track for its biggest two-day drop in nearly eight months. The BoJ move also lifted bond yields across the world, generally a negative factor for gold as it increases the opportunity cost of holding non-interest bearing bullion. However, the impact of the dollar's fall outweighed that factor. Meanwhile Holdings of SPDR Gold Trust fell 0.35 percent to 828.96 tonnes on Wednesday from Tuesday. While from India, India's gold imports surged 67 percent in 2017 from the previous year to 855 tonnes as jewellers replenished inventory amid a rebound in retail demand, provisional data from precious metals consultancy GFMS showed. The rebound in purchases by India, could support global prices, which are already near their highest levels in three months. Now Market participants are focusing on the release of U.S. inflation data due on Friday, for clues on the potential pace of rate hikes by the Federal Reserve. The greenback had initially strengthened after San Francisco Fed President John Williams said on Saturday that the Fed should raise interest rates three times this year given that economy will benefit from tax cuts. Technically market is getting support at 29154 and below same could see a test of 28983 level, And resistance is now likely to be seen at 29463, a move above could see prices testing 29601.
